[THE SCENE] Jane Franklin Dance's Skate-Park Shuffle Next month, this NoVa dance troupe will perform its multimedia piece "Breaking Ground" at a somewhat underground place — an indoor skate park on Ninth Street NW, tying in the work's subject matter to the space. (Although no dancers actually hop up on skateboards during the performance, the piece does feature skateboarders in its projections.) Virginians can get a peek this weekend when "Breaking Ground" is performed outdoors in the 15,000-square-foot, government-sanctioned Powhatan Springs Skatepark, as the park remains open and skaters perform their tricks on the ramps. Free. 6:30 p.m. 6020 Wilson Blvd., Arlington. 703-533-2362 or for more details about this and the Oct. 4 performance at the indoor park (tickets are $20), visit www.janefranklin.com.
